Cathrine Finsrud and Hildur Bjørnsdottir is offering a 2 day workshop in botanical contact-printing and how to take your prints a step further.

Cathrine has done research with botanical contact printing for several years. In the method you will learn in this workshop we simmer the papers and plantmaterial in a dyepot. You will get some basic recipies and guidelines that will allow you to play around with the magic of getting prints directly from plantmaterials. This way of printing is based on traditional plant dyeing recipes, cold contact printing principles and the constant search of a technique that will give a colour/lightsafe result.

Hildur will show you some of the techniques she has used to take the prints from the plants to the next step. We are printing on a hahnemuhle combinationpaper for this workshop which is very versatile. In this workshop we focus on different handcolouring techniques, but the contact-prints can be combined with any kind of intaglio, relief or blockprinting of your choice.

There will be a infoletter to those of you who registrates, with the recipies and suggestions to what you can bring to the workshop.

We look forward to your registration or any questions.
